New York, Feb. 13.-It could at least he said at the close of last week that at no other time since the declining movement in securities began in the forepart of October last year was there found a greater number of people in the financial their business operations and correct in their views of markets and prices, expressing the opinion that prices of stocks had in a large number of instances reached levels at which they could be called cheap, even considering all the adverse anguments that can be brought to bear against the stock market at the

This was the real demonstration of financial interest in last week's five business days.

Doubtless from a strictly stock market point of view the most notable change for the better that has come about is the thoroughgoing improvement in the money

Most bankers still believe that the business prospects for the year are such that they will make more money by lending money in the year 1910 than they did in 1909; that is to say, that they will get higher rates for the use of their funds.

Easy Money Period Coming. But so drastic has been the market liquidation and such has been the check, even if temporary, to general business expansion also afforded by this that it is now reasonably clear that whatever may happen later on in the year a period of very easy money confronts us. When money for six months' use can be borrowed at 4 per cent and for over the year at 41-2 per cent talk of tight soney entirely disappears as a financial factor. In Friday's bank statement the actual surplus reserve was reported as being $29,490,725, a very large sum for the time of year and nearly three times greater than that shown at the same date in 1909, and that a species of international money plethora exists is shown in the reduction of discount rates ordered last sea again in her. week by the Bank of England and the Bank of Germany.
